THE WAYNEFLOW CASE STUDY PACK

6 campaigns. 588,000 emails. The real numbers.

Six cold email and LinkedIn campaigns we ran in 2026, with the dashboard screenshot behind every number, and the lesson you can copy into your own outbound.

CASE 01 · AGENCY CLIENT

2,146 people said "Yes, tell me more."

A marketing agency needed a steady flow of conversations with business owners. In four and a half months, the campaign turned cold lists into thousands of positive replies, without touching the agency's main domain.

82,671	2,429	2,146	$175,000
emails sent	replies	interested	pipeline

The lesson: Consistency beats bursts. About 100 interested replies a week, every week, came from steady daily sending and a list that kept getting sharper.

CASE 02 · CONSTRUCTION SOFTWARE

From a cold inbox to 6 signed annual contracts.

A construction software company wanted demos with contractors who had never heard of them. Cold email took them from zero awareness to sales-qualified demos and signed annual deals.

162,073	4,449	31	6
emails sent	replies	qualified demos	annual contracts

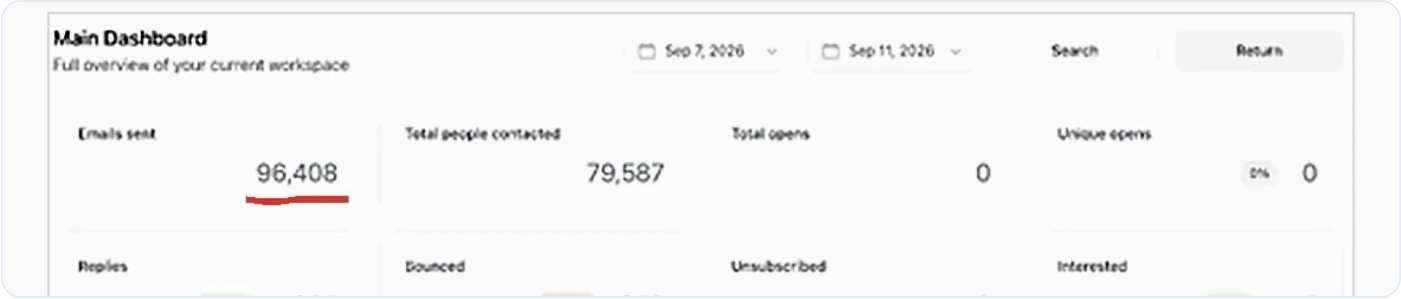

The lesson: Judge cold email by contracts, not replies. 4,449 replies became 31 qualified demos and 6 annual deals because every reply was handled fast.

CASE 03 · THE 5 DAY BLITZ

96,408 emails. Five days. 25 calls on the calendar.

A client needed meetings fast. With inboxes already warm and lists verified, we ran a five day push and filled the calendar inside a single week, with a bounce rate under half a percent.

96,408	1,095	115	25
emails in 5 days	replies	interested	calls booked

The lesson: Speed needs preparation. Warm inboxes and a verified list made a five day push possible, with a bounce rate under half a percent.

CASE 04 · A FULL QUARTER

1,061 interested leads in one quarter.

Over one quarter we ran a steady, high-volume program. Consistent daily sending, list hygiene and constant testing produced a reliable stream of interested buyers month after month.

236,545	4,372	3.69%	1,061
emails sent	replies	reply rate	interested

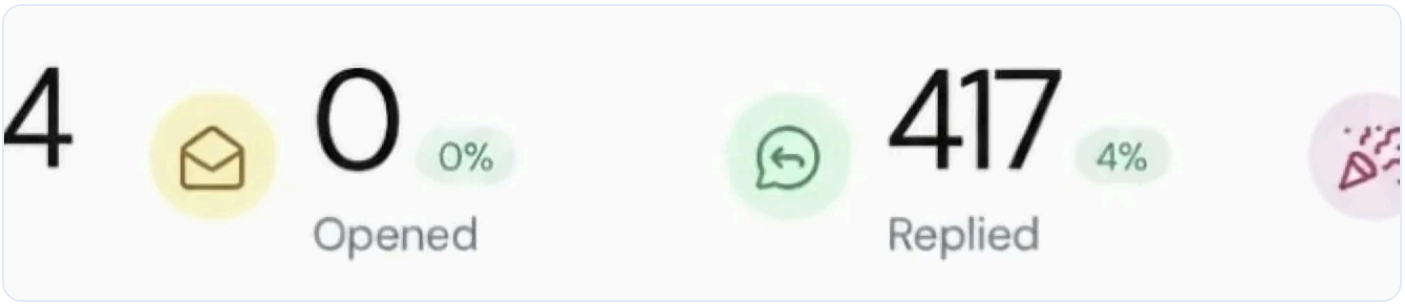

The lesson: Volume only works with hygiene. 236,545 emails stayed out of spam because every list was verified and daily volume per inbox stayed low.

CASE 05 · SMALL PILOT

103 opportunities from 10,284 people.

A small, tightly targeted pilot to prove the model before scaling. A sharp list and a simple offer turned about ten thousand contacts into more than a hundred real opportunities.

10,284	417	4%	103
contacted	replied	reply rate	opportunities

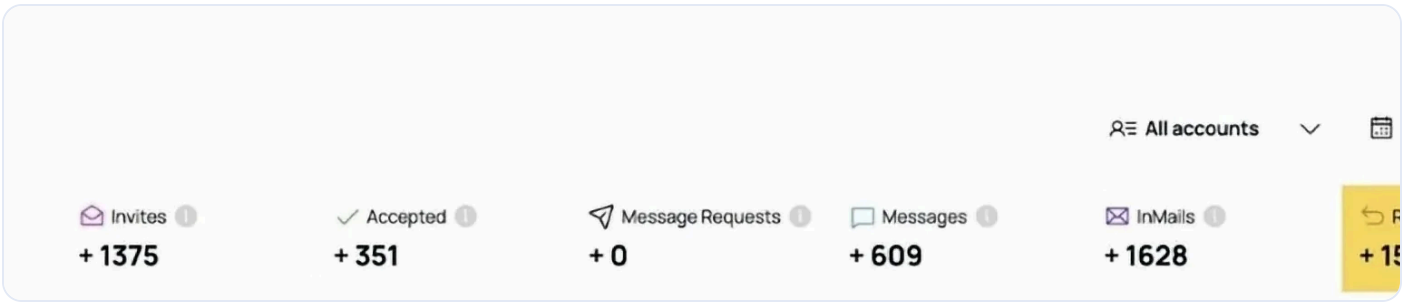

The lesson: Test small before you scale. Ten thousand well-chosen contacts were enough to prove the offer before spending more.

CASE 06 · LINKEDIN OUTREACH

154 replies from founders and investors.

Not every buyer lives in the inbox. For one of the hardest audiences to reach, founders and angel investors, we ran LinkedIn outreach alongside email and opened 154 conversations.

1,375	351	1,628	154
invites	accepted	InMails	replies

The lesson: Go where the buyer reads. For founders and investors, LinkedIn opened conversations that email alone would not have.

How every campaign was built

The same four steps sit behind all six results.

1 Find the buyers

We list the decision makers who match the client's best customers and verify every email before anything is sent.

2 Protect the domain

We send from separate domains we set up and warm. The client's main domain is never touched.

3 Write emails people answer

Short, plain and about the buyer's problem. The client approves every email before it goes out.

4 Book the meeting

We reply, follow up and qualify. Interested buyers land on the client's calendar with a short brief.

Five rules you can use today

1. Never send cold email from your main domain. Use a separate domain and inboxes, and warm them for about two weeks first.
2. Verify every list. Our bounce rates stayed between 0.45% and about 3% because nothing went out unverified.
3. Turn open tracking off. Tracking pixels push emails toward spam. Measure replies and booked meetings instead.
4. Keep emails under 100 words. One problem, one short proof point, one easy question.
5. Follow up with something new. Three to five emails, each adding a fact or a result, never "just bumping this".
